Definitions	LangSmith Platform Subscription: An annual subscription that grants Customer an unlimited number of users access to and use of the LangSmith platform during the Subscription Term. The Platform Subscription does not include usage-based charges which are billed separately according to the rates set forth in this Order Form. LangChain Usage Credits: A pre-purchased amount that gives the Customer the right to consume LangSmith Observability, LangSmith Evaluations, LangSmith Deployment and/or Fleet capabilities at pre-negotiated rates. LangChain Usage Credits expire at the end of the Subscription Term. Traces: A Trace is one complete invocation of an application chain or agent (including subgraph agents), evaluator run, or playground run in LangSmith. Deployment Run: means a complete invocation of a LangSmith Agent whether initiated within a LangSmith Application or through the Ancillary Software, consisting of execution from the start Node to the end Node. For purposes of calculating Subscription Metrics, a Deployment Run is counted regardless of whether the invocation succeeds, fails, or is interrupted. Nodes and subgraphs executed within a single invocation are counted as part of the same Deployment Run. Resuming execution after a human-in-the-loop interruption constitutes a separate Deployment Run. Where a LangSmith agent invokes another agent (e.g., through RemoteGraph or the Ancillary Software), each invocation is counted as a separate Deployment Run and is billed to the Customer deployment hosting the agent being called. Fleet Run: means a complete invocation of a Fleet-created agent initiated by the receipt of a message or event, whether triggered automatically or sent manually. This includes messages via configured triggers (including third-party integrations or other connected services) and messages sent directly through the Fleet user interface (e.g., chat ). A Fleet Run is counted if the invocation succeeds or is interrupted. Resuming execution after a human-in-the-loop interruption constitutes a separate Fleet Run. Executions that fail do not count as a Fleet Run.
